WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, July 8th, 1905.

Editor Press:—

The President has offered the important post of Secretary of State to Elihu Root and Mr. Root has accepted. This brief announcement from Oyster Bay will prove an occasion of gratification to the American people who may rest assured that with the international relations of the United States in the hands of so able a man as Elihu Root they will be well safeguarded. The feeling seems to be unanimous among public men and many men in private life who keep in touch with public affairs that the President and the nation are to be congratulated on the wisdom of the President's selection and on the acceptance of a place at the cabinet table by Elihu Root. The splendid work which Mr. Root performed as Secretary of War is regarded as a certain guarantee of his success as Secretary of State. The masterly manner in which he conducted the affairs relating to the Philippines insurrection, his broad statesmanship, as demonstrated in his conduct of the relations of the United States with Cuba, and his remarkable foresight and constructive ability as displayed in his reorganization of the army and the militia of the nation have all served to demonstrate his remarkable ability and to convince the people, as they have President, of Mr. Root's prominent ability to conduct with credit and eclat the affairs of any department of the government entrusted to him.

Since leaving the cabinet, eighteen months ago, Mr. Root has been entrusted with numerous legal cases of great importance and it will repuire at least two weeks for him to sever his connection with his various clients. At the end of that time he will come to Washington and take the oath of office but it is pobable that not until autumn will he come back to Washington as a permanent resident. The belief is generally expressed that when Mr. Root does take hold of the affairs of the Department of State he will institute a new regime, that many of the fossils who now cumber the offices of one of the most important departments of the government will be compelled either to reform their methods and to make some attempts to render a fair return for the compensation they receive or to hand in their resignations. As Secretary of War Mr. Root proved a cold, but a just employer. He was quick to recognize merit where merit existed, but was invariably intollerant of slack methods of doing business and gave short shift to the men who were disposed to regard government employment as a political "snap" carrying with it the privilege of drawing salary without doing much, if any work. As Mr. Root's reputation in this regard has travelled before him there is some consternation among the barnacles of the Department of State.

Children's Aid Society of Western Pennsylvania—Objects and Methods.

The object of the Children's Aid Society is to provide for the welfare of destitute and neglected children by such means as shall be best for them and for the community. Our method of accomplishing this object is:

1. By placing such children in carefully selected private families, mostly in the country, paying a moderate rate of board where necessary, and following up each case with such inquiry and supervision as may secure to the child the conditions of physical and moral well-being.

2. By utilizing existing institutions for children as temporary homes, while permanent family places are being sought.

3. By putting, as far as possible, the support of a child upon its relatives or parents, legitimate or otherwise, and by preventing the needless separation of mothers and children.

4. The law forbidding the detention of children in almshouses can best be carried out by the co-operation of the Directors of the Poor, with voluntary associations of discreet and benevolent women, who are willing to find places for the children, look after their welfare, and report to the Directors. It is for the interest of the tax payers that these children be taken out of the pauper class as soon as possible and absorbed in the community.

5. In a county where such an association exists, and where the Directors make fair allowance for the support of the children, there is no excuse for detaining any child in the headquarters for paupers and no need of creating an institution for pauper children.

LIZZIE J. HINKLE, Pres.

Elks at Buffalo.

Buffalo is entertaining the Elks this week, ten thousand arriving the first day. Five trains passed through Emporium on Sunday, all loaded, for Buffalo. Yesterday was the big day and it is said to equal the Pan-Am., for electric display.

Removed from Cameron.

E. V. Dunlevie discontinued his busiar Cameron on Tuesday, having mov his offices to Travelers Rest, West Va., where he has extensive lumber operations. He will be greatly missed at Cameron, where he has given employment to a large number of men. He is a hustler and the PRESS wishes him additional prosperity in the south.

June Weather.

The average daily temperature for June was 67, same as June last year. The rainfall was 4.33 inches, about normal, but ¾ inch less than for same month last year. T.B.L.

Official Visitation.

Hon. Cadwallader Biddle, Dr. McCloud and Dr. Mitchell, members of Pennsylvania State Board of Public Charities visited Cameron county jail on Tuesday. They complimented the Sheriff on the efficient manner he conducted his office but condemned the sanitary condition of the jail sewers.

Pleasant Visit.

Mr. E. E. Dodson, director of agents of Pittsburg Life and Trust Co., was a PRESS visitor on Saturday, accompanied by Prof. W. J. Leavitt, who has resigned his position in C. B. Howard & Co's store to take charge of the insurance business in this section. Will should make a hustling good solicitor. We enjoyed Mr. Dodson's visit and found him a very pleasant gentleman.

Electrical Storm.

Emporium was visited by a terrible electrical storm last Friday afternoon, accompanied by a heavy rain. A tenement house, owned by Mrs. Mary E. Mayze and occupied by Sylvester Donough and Fred Robinson, was seriously damaged by lighting. Fire started in the midst of the storm and prompt assistance saved the building from destruction. No insurance. It is a miracle that the inmates escaped injury or death.

Killed at Gardeau.

Geo. S. Alden, aged 30, was killed at Gardeau last Sunday night. While alighting from a freight train he stepped in front of another train, when he was struck by engine. He died within a few minutes. His remains were brought to Emporium on the freight but had to be taken back to Gardeau at once for Coroner's inquest. Deceased leaves a wife and six children to mourn his death.

Pleasant Surprise.

On Monday night the good people of the First Baptist Church, organized and very successfully executed a surprise at the parsonage of their pastor on Fourth street. The occasion was that of the birthday of Mrs. Twichell, who has always found great favor with the whole flock. All gathered at the home of Mrs. Pepperman on the same street. The clock striking eight was the signal for starting. The march continued till the broad, beautiful lawn was reached, when they pressed in to pass Mrs. Twichell with their baskets, their boxes, their cream and their cheer to take possession of the parsonage. A happy evening was spent, interspersed here and there with music, singing and banqueting. Just before mid-night, with their "Many happy returns" to the pleased pastor and his winning wife, all filed out again, feeling that all present had struck another sweet note in the perfect harmony of the present pastorate. An investigation proved that the pantry was too small to hold the great variety, ranging from the most dainty delicacies to the most servicable supply. It was also found that a delicately decorated china dish had been left to merge into a mint. Its contents was found to be a combination of rustling sounds and clatter of coin. This is a time of prosperity in the parish. X

Attempted Suicide.

About four weeks ago Theodore Gillson who had been confined in Warren Insane Asylum, being a victim of morphine habit, escaped from that institution, coming on foot to Thos. Norton's farm, near Emporium. He worked on the farm for Mr. Norton until last Sunday when he visited Emporium. A PRESS representative noticed the unfortunate, his actions exciting our suspicions. He stopped at one of our hotels over night, but the following day, Monday he managed to get hold of some Chloride of Mercury and took an over dose. He was found in an alley near Norris' liver stables by some boys, who called attention to his condition. Finally he was carried to the Hook and Ladder Co., rooms and Dr. Falk called, who pronounced it a case of poisoning. The doctor worked over him for some time and succeeded in relieving him sufficiently to learn his name and home. Poor master J. W. Kriner wired to his brother, who resides at Corry and received reply that he would be here on Tuesday. While conversing with the poor unfortunate fellow he told us that he thought he was cured sufficiently to leave the asylum, when he departed, but after coming to Emporium and again getting filled up with the drug he determined to end it all and took the poisonous drug, two tablets; that he had seven tablets and thinks he must have taken all of them—an overdose. At this writing, (Tuesday) it is hard to tell what the result will be, the unfortunate fellow suffering great pain. He has for years been a morphine fiend.

The Observer.

We frequently these days encounter the phrase "civic decadence," but the very fact that we use that and similar phrases is in reality a reason for hope and encouragement. So long as people are thoroughly in slavery to an evil, they are not troubled by it and do not raise alarming cries about it nor call it hard names. When a community is really so corrupt that it is contented in its corruption, the outlook is not encouraging. When it is corrupt and knows it and writhes under this knowledge the outlook for its redemption is more encouraging.

The lack of civic virtue is manifest in two classes: First there are the corrupt politicians who see in public office an opportunity for private graft and who, like the late chief of Tammany Hall, are working for their own pockets all the time. The other class comprises the great body of citizens who are so absorbed in private business that they have no serious concern for public affairs. A few years ago some wealthy business men in one of our large cities openly took the position that they could better afford to be plundered by corrupt public servants than to sacrifice additional opportunities for money making by devoting part of their time to the interests of good politics. It would be hard to say which of these two classes is the more lacking in civic virtue. The trouble with each is that it is individualistic and selfish. The representative of each looks upon the interests of the body politic as something different from and external to his own individual interest. We can readily understand how such a feeling and view should exist under a despotic government. A typical despot regards his power and authority as his own individual possession to be used by him for his own personal advantage. The subjects of such a despot, accustomed only to submit and obey, know nothing of a power and responsibility inherent in themselves. Why is it that the free born sons of our American democracy fall so readily into a habit of mind and spirit that belongs rather to such countries as Russia and Turkey?

An endeavor to assign a philosophical reason for this condition has been made by Mr. Wilson L. Gill, of the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia. According to his view, the robust civic virtue which marked the early decades of national history was begotten and nourished in the home life of our people. There was then a general independence of spirit, "a wholesome fearlessness of thought, an impatience of anything that was fundamentally unjust, a moral stamina and courage that made men dare all for the defence of the principles of justice, equity and the essential rights of man." He noticed also "the general recognition on the part of the individual that the nation had certain claims upon him; that there were duties encumbent upon all true friends of republican institutions that could not rightly be ignored or shifted to others' shoulders."

Since then, owing to great industrial changes, the home as an institute of independence and civic virtue, has ceased to exist for a large proportion of our population. It was hoped that the demands of the new conditions might be met through the development of a system of public education. Popular education, however, has failed in a number of vital particulars. For one thing, and it is with this that we are chiefly concerned, the management of the school has been based wholly upon a monarchical as opposed to a democratic system and spirit. However wise and equitable the discipline may be in the school room, the fact remains that so far as the pupils are concerned the teacher is an autocrat pure and simple. The pupils learn nothing in self-government; their whole duty in relation to the government of the school is simply to yield unquestioning obedience to the external authority of the teacher. Such a training is admirably adapted to the future subjects of a monarchy; but is it adapted to the future citizens of a republic? The pupils are trained to be ruled, not to bear a part in ruling; they are trained to be subjects, not to be members of a sovereign democracy; they are trained to implicit and irresponsible submission, not to a share in the burden of authority and responsibility. What then more natural than that pupils so trained should go to swell the ranks of those who look upon public administration as a matter wholly external to and beyond themselves, and who submit passively, as by inbred instinct, to any form of corrupt public service?

Bodies Blown to Fragments.

Eight men were blown to pieces and two others were injured by a premature explosion of a big blast of rock powder on the Pennsylvania railroad improvements near New Cumberland, last Sunday morning. The accident occurred directly across the river from the scene of the Pennsylvania railroad wreck, near Harrisburg, on May 11, in which 23 persons were killed and many others injured.

All the victims were employes of H. S. Kerbugh & Company, incorporated contractors, who are building the double tracks for the Pennsylvania railroad.

The dead are: Jas. Wiseman, aged 50 years, dynamite boss, Buffalo, N.Y; Arthur Green, colored, Harrisburg; Robt. Thompson, colored, Harrisburg; Frank Mullach, a Slav; three Italians and one Slav unknown.

FLEMING.

Mrs Ann Fleming died Monday, July 3rd of dropsy of the heart, at the residence of her son at Lock Haven, aged 77 years. Mrs. Fleming is survived by one son, Mr. John Fleming of the above place and four daughters, Mrs. Dora Gugan, of Olympia, Washington; Mrs. Mary Collins of Huntley; Mrs. Clara Jordan of Emporium and Mrs. Elizabeth Logue of Superior, Wisconsin. The remains were interred in the Lock Haven cemetery.

Her maiden name was Dorey and was the last survivor of a family of eleven children. She was a member of the Desciple church at Lock Haven for near forty years and a great Bible student, her Bible being her chief source of pleasure for many years. She spent the last twelve winters of her life with her daughter, Mrs. J. K. Jordan, in Emporium and made many friends here.

Dr. Lamb Wins Case.

At a special term of Court held last week the case of D. H. Lamb, a Galeton pharmacist, vs Pike Township was brought to recover damages for an accident to Mr. Lamb which occasioned the loss of his right arm. About two years ago a party composed of Galeton people set out for a day's outing and driving toward West Pike, their wagon which was drawn by four horses, was damaged by coming in contact with an exposed gas pipe, causing the horses to run away and Mr. Lamb, in leaving the wagon, unfortunately caught his arm in one of the wheels, fracturing it so badly that amputation was necessary, and from which injury he suffered considerably up to the present time, his health being much impaired through the result of the accident. There were many witnesses sworn and testified for both sides, producing strong testimony. The case was brought to a close Wednesday and decided in favor of Mr. Lamb, who receives $5,000 from the township of Pike.—Austin Autograph. The Dr's many Cameron county friends congratulate him, yet feel that $5,000 is a small compensation for the loss of an arm. He sued for $25,000, we are informed.

Death of Mrs. Elizabeth Benson.

The angel of death visited the home of Mr. Bert Benson, of Cameron, Pa., summoning the beloved wife Mrs. Elizabeth Benson to the Great Beyond. Mrs. Benson was taken suddenly ill July 3rd and despite the utmost efforts of Dr. DeLong, of Emporium and Dr. Rutherford, of Clermont, she passed away July 4th, in confinement Mrs. Benson was 36 years of age and is survived by her husband, two children, her mother, six brothers and two sisters. The funeral was conducted by funeral director George J. LaBar, of Emporium. The remains were taken to her mother's home at Rassales, Pa., for interment in the Catholic Cemetery, The Rev. Father Heiber having charge of the funeral services. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. Mrs. Benson was one of our most popular and esteemed ladies. A loving wife and mother, a good neignbor and a true and faithful friend, she will be mourned and missed greatly by all who knew her. The entire community extends heartfelt sympathy to Mr. Benson and family in their great bereavement.

A wife and mother dear have gone;
A voice forever still;
The chair is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled;
God in His wisdom has removed her,
From this world of care;
And took her to his home so pure,
To dwell forever there.

The progressive Japanese have not failed to learn the merits of the automobile and to show their fondness for it. Recently, while in this country, Korekiyo Takahashi, special financial commissioner of the imperial Japanese government, member of the House of Peers, and vice-governor of the Bank of Japan, who supervised the flotation of the Japanese war loan of $150,000,000, completed an automobile tour of Westchester county, New York.

Headed by the United States, with their $19,273,675,200 of life insurance in force, the human family is totally insured for the gigantic total of $26,277,409,640. Should any simultaneous fatality occur among the holders of insurance policies, or even a tithe of them, every insurance company on earth would be bankrupted in paying the beneficiaries, the aggregate amount of insurance far exceeding the total amount of money in international circulation.

Probably the most remarkable shoes ever produced within recent times were those worn at a function in London the other day by a lady well known in society. In keeping with a gorgeous gown, which is said to have cost a fabulous sum, she wore a pair of shoes that were literally covered with flashing jewels—diamonds, rubies and pearls. The style of decoration was of a remarkably striking character. Five hundred dollars was the price of each shoe.

Cigarette clubs, the object of which is to provide their members with cigarettes by buying them in bulk outside of the state, have been formed in Indianapolis and in other cities of the state, and thousands of packages are now coming into Indiana through the mails and by express. In nearly all the counties the decision by Judge Leathers, holding that cigarettes so bought may be smoked legally, has been generally accepted. Local dealers who refuse to handle cigarettes are taking the orders for the clubs.

President Roosevelt has indicated the metes and bounds of the family by numerous letters of congratulation to fathers and mothers of 12, 16 and 20 children and upwards, and the public mind was reaching a sort of fixity and finality on the vexed subject. Now comes Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, president of New York's Federation of Day Nurses, with a new dictum which upsets everything. She declares "the absolute limit of a woman's capacity for taking care of babies is eight, and she ought never to have more than six."

There are domestic fires burning in Yorkshire, Eng., to-day which have never been out for hundreds of years. At the old-fashioned farmhouses in the dales of Yorkshire peat is still burned. The fuel is obtained from the moors and stacks of it are kept by the farmers in their stack garths. The country roundabout is noted for its "girdle-cakes," which are made from dough baked in quaint pans suspended over the peat fires. These fires are kept glowing from generation to generation.

PARTY FOR YOUNG MEN.

Republican Principles Attract the Young and Progressive Elements of the Nation.

The juxtaposition of the names of Morton and Bonaparte, in connection with the cabinet, shows that the republican party still has the power which it was famed for at its birth of attracting the young, alert, progressive men from all the other political organizations. Paul Morton, the head of the navy department, was a democrat until a few years ago. So was Charles J. Bonaparte, who succeeds him. Both are men in the early prime of life. Morton comes from a family which has been democratic through generations. His father held office under a democratic administration, being secretary of agriculture in one of Cleveland's cabinets. None of the American Bonapartes has been a republican until the present member of that house changed his politics a few years ago. Each of these democrats of several generations of lineage at last found himself compelled to abandon the party of his fathers and come over to the party of progress.

Said John P. Hale in the senate in 1855: "All the young men in the country are flocking to the new party. We have the coming generation with us. The new party meant the republican party. Seward, Chase, Sumner, Lincoln and all the other pioneers in the formation of the party of freedom called it the party of young men, and predicted on that account that it had the future on its side. As compared with a party like the democracy, which learns nothing and forgets nothing, the republican party was bound to make an irresistible appeal to the youth, the public spirit and the patriotism of the country. It had the young man's devotion to high ideals, and also the young man's enthusiasm. Its first defeats only served to make the faith of its members the stronger and to close more firmly the door of compromise with wrong. The confidence of Lincoln and his compatriots in the midst of the early reverses was voiced by Whittier in his republican war song of 1856, called out by Fremont's defeat in the party's first presidential canvass:

Then sound again the bugle,
Call the muster roll anew,
If months have well nigh won the fight,
What may not four years do?

We see by recent events that the republican party still exercises its old spell over the minds and hearts of young and public-spirited men. In the election for president last year all the great, growing progressive north and west declared for the republican party by large majorities. In some communities party lines were almost swept away. As in the international yacht race of half a century ago, the winner was so far to the front that there was no second. The republican party, in these days of swiftly changing conditions and issues, maintains its primacy because it has the intelligence and the virtue to deal with each question promptly as it arises, and to deal with it right. This party has the most inspiring record of any political organization which the country has known, but it does not rest its claims to preferment upon this. It makes a new record every day, and the record appeals to the mass of the progressive, patriotic people. The number of democrats who have become republicans in recent years, and who will remain republicans, would make a long list. Here is one of the secrets of its power. It draws to its fold the best of the members of the other parties, and retains them. In external as in internal politics, the country relies on this political organization. In the earth-shaking international events which are occurring these days, and which are in sight, the American people have unshaken confidence that the republican party which is in control of affairs will shape the country's destinies wisely.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

POINTS FOR POLITICIANS.

☞Mr. Bryan says the democrats should do more thinking. Mr. Bryan is apparently working against his own chances for a renomination.—Washington Post.

☞Banks are paying extra dividends in New York. Prosperity will unboubtedly continue until the democratic party shall gain more power.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

☞President Roosevelt emphasizes his confidence in the integrity of Assistant Secretary Loomis by sending him on a secret mission to Europe.—Buffalo Express.

☞Tom Johnson experiences a mighty and inextinguishable yearning to get the socialistic brethren in Ohio another tremendous licking. One would think he could get enough excitement out of his eccentric and man-devouring automobile.—Chicago Chronicle.

☞Many of the men who are talking the most radically in favor of tariff ripping have been against the republican party when that party was fighting the battles of conservatism and honesty and the present existence of the republican party in power and glory is not due to them.—American Economist.

Nothing to Worry About.

No republican should be alarmed when the threat is made that if republicans do not reform the tariff, "the democrats will." The democrats themselves had the opportunity last year to turn the country over to the revisionists. They had a respectable candidate in Judge Parker. He was committed to tariff ripping, but the democrats turned him down and voted for Roosevelt, whose letter of acceptance was one of the most radical documents in favor of protection that was ever written.—American Economist.

EXONERATION OF LOOMIS.

Charges of Minister Bowen Did Not Survive the Light of Investigation.

The complete exoneration of Hon. Francis B. Loomis, assistant secretary of state, from the charges made against him by Herbert W. Bowen, his successor as the American minister to Venezuela, is no more than had been anticipated by those who were personally acquainted with Mr. Loomis. Mr. Loomis at the outset met the charges with an emphatic denial and an earnest demand for a full and impartial investigation. This was made by Hon. William H. Taft, secretary of war, and for some time acting as head of the department of state. A more thorough and unprejudiced inquiry could not have been conducted, and after a searching and minute examination of all the circumstances Secretary Taft has reported Mr. Bowen's conduct as inexcusable, and Mr. Loomis is wholly exculpated, says the Troy (N. Y.) Times.

In this report President Roosevelt promptly and emphatically concurs, and with the impartiality and straightforwardness that are among his notable characteristics, he takes action accordingly. The entire vindication of Mr. Loomis is accepted, while Mr. Bowen is dismissed from the public service. The president points out that "even if Mr. Loomis had been guilty, Mr. Bowen's conduct would have been unpardonable" in view of the furtive and underhanded manner in which he conducted his attack upon his official superior, and the charges having been proved absolutely false he is summarily removed from the post he occupies and from the diplomatic service. This is a most stinging rebuke, and the earnestness and vigor with which the president speaks show how deeply he resents Mr. Bowen's action.

The outcome clears the situation and disposes finally of a most unpleasant incident, while the demands of justice are exactly met. The friends of Assistant Secretary Loomis, whose confidence in his honor and integrity has been unshaken from the first, greatly rejoice at the happy outcome of the matter so far as he is concerned. At the same time the step taken by President Roosevelt in removing Mr. Bowen from the post of minister to Venezuela is fully warranted. Mr. Bowen had ceased to be persona grata at the capital to which he was accredited, and as friendly relations between a diplomatist and the head of the government of the country to which he is assigned are essential to the maintenance of official intercourse and harmonious feeling, the only thing to do was to remove Mr. Bowen from Caracas. He certainly had ceased to be useful there.

HAVE ANOTHER SIDE ISSUE

Democrats Who Are Trying to Ring In Municipal Ownership as a Bait.

Dalrymple, the Glasgow man who was sent to Chicago to look over the ground, in response to Mayor Dunne's request, furnishes the wrong sort of testimony for the mayor, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. As a man who knows something about municipal ownership at home, Dalrymple was expected to form a correct judgment as to its practicability in Chicago, and in other big towns in this country. "To put street railroads, gas works, telephone companies, etc., under municipal ownership would be to create a political machine in every large city that would be impregnable." This is Dalrymple's verdict on municipal ownership conditions in the United States.

The Glasgow expert has said many absurd things since he has been in this country, but there is no doubt that he sizes the municipal ownership situation here correctly. He says that when he landed in the United States he was a believer in municipal ownership for this country, but declares that, after some study of the situation, he is convinced that "private ownership, under proper conditions, is far better for American cities." Every sane person in this country knew this all along. Thousands of persons in Chicago could have told all this to Mayor Dunne at the outset, and have averted the big expense and the accompanying humiliation which have been heaped on Chicago by this ridiculous Dalrymple importation.

Mayor Dunne says municipal ownership will be put in the democratic platform of 1908. Mr. Bryan and other prominent democrats have said the same thing. Perhaps they are right. If their guess is right, however, it will be so much the worse for the democratic party. Municipal ownership will be as bad a blunder for the democrats in 1908 as silverism was in 1896, as anti-imperialism was in 1900 and as its silly antics for and against silver and against national expansion were in 1904. An imbecility of some sort is due from the democracy three years hence, and municipal ownership will perhaps serve the purpose as well as anything else.

☞Reciprocity is tariff discrimination and must inevitably create a condition of tariff instability.—American Economist.

Platform of Democrats.

As it is in Ohio and in Chicago so it is in the country at large. Bryan, Tom Johnson and Dunne want to make the platform. They are confident that whatever platform they make the candidates will accept. They are chiefly interested in the platform because they believe the party is prepared to swallow the rankest kind of socialistic doctrine and that the candidates will have to do the same or go overboard. It stands the republican party in hand to give the democracy a monopoly of that kind of platform.—Chicago Chronicle.

DEATH CAME IN STORM'S PATH

Twenty-four Persons Killed by a Tornado that Raged Near Nocona, Texas.

MANY HOUSES WERE SWEPT AWAY

Three Churches and a Court House Were Wrecked—The Total Number of People Killed and Injured Will Probably Reach Sixty.

Dallas, Tex., July 6.—A special to the News from Nocona, Tex., says:

A tornado and thunder storm passed a few miles west and south of here Wednesday afternoon, killing 14 persons and injuring many others and destroying a number of houses. The latest reports from the storm-swept district give the following casualties. Dead:

Mrs. C. C. Shackelford.
Linnie Shackelford, daughter of R. G. Shackelford.
Mrs. S. L. Tumbleson and three children.
Mrs. Mary Lester and four children.
Caleb White.
Mrs. Irb Williams.
Irb Williams.
Frank, son of Sam Eakin, killed by lightning.

Four of Z. W. Shackelford's children received serious injuries. A child of Mrs. Mary Lester is believed to be fatally injured.

Many farm houses were swept entirely away. The school house three miles west of Nocona was damaged.

The Baptist and Methodist churches at Belcher were considerably damaged. The Methodist church at Montague is reported wrecked and the court house damaged, also other churches. The Dixie school house, six miles south of Nocona, was entirely blown away. Hailstones as large as hens' eggs fell here, breaking out many window glasses.

Reports of the work of the tornado are still coming in. The number of killed and injured will probably reach 60.

Montague, Tex., July 6.—Ten people are dead as a result of a tornado that passed over Montague yesterday afternoon. They are:

A. P. Earl.
Miss Sadie Earl, daughter of A. P. Earl.
Burke Earl, his son.
Baby of Lawrence Pillow.
Tomlinson family, consisting of husband, wife and four children.
Fatally injured:
Clairborn White, 45 years old.

ENDEAVORERS' CONVENTION

The International Conclave Begins at Baltimore with a Big Attendance.

Baltimore, July 6.—All the incoming railway trains yesterday brought thousands of delegates and visitors to the international convention of the Christian Endeavor society. Every state in the Union, Canada and many foreign countries were represented.

Preceding the formal opening of the convention there was held a business meeting of the United Society of Christian Endeavor (corporation) at which officers and trustees for the ensuing year were elected. All the old officers were re-elected, as follows:

President, Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark; general secretary, Von Ogden Vogt; treasurer, William Shaw; publishing agent, George B. Graff.

The formal opening of the twenty-second convention took place in the afternoon in Armory hall, with about 8,000 delegates present and nearly all of the 16,000 seats in the vast auditorium occupied. The hall had been ornately decorated for the occasion and the scene presented was one of extraordinary picturesqueness and animation.

In the absence of President Francis E. Clark, who is detained at home by illness, Rev. Howard B. Grose, of New York, presided and opened the proceedings with brief remarks.

Treasurer Shaw read a letter from President Roosevelt expressing regret at being unable to attend the convention.

WITH NON-UNIONISTS.

Tin Plate Mills at Pittsburg and New Kensington, Pa., Are Being Operated—Wage Scale Reduced.

Pittsburg, July 6.—The American Sheet and Tin Plate Co. was partly successful yesterday in the attempt to start its plants here and at New Kensington and have them operated by non-union workmen. At the Pittsburg works, which contains seven mills and has been a union plant ever since it was built, two crews reported for work and made tin plate all day. But one crew reported at the other plant, which has been operated as an open mill for months.

The refusal of the men to go to work was caused by a notice that was posted last Friday notifying all workmen that they would have to work under the Demmler scale, which means a reduction of about 10 per cent. from the wages they were receiving.

Three Deaths in a Collision.

Fitchburg, Mass., July 6.—Three men were killed and two injured and thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed by a head-on collision Wednesday between an eastbound freight train and a westbound coal train near Wachusett Station, on the Boston & Maine railroad.

A Fatal Knockout.

Aberdeen, Wash., July 6.—Fred Ross, who was knocked out by Jack Donnelly in the sixteenth round of a prize fight Monday night, is dead. His neck was dislocated.

IN A CHURCH AT PARIS.

Remains of Paul Jones Are Delivered to America's Representatives.

Paris, July 7.—In the presence of the highest dignitaries of France, the diplomatic representatives of many foreign governments and civil and naval officials of the United States, the body of Admiral John Paul Jones was yesterday formally returned to the United States government.

The ceremony of delivering the body was held in the American church on the Avenue De L'Alma. The interior of this edifice was beautifully decorated. At the foot of the chancel rested the casket wrapped in an American flag and literally buried in floral emblems.

At the right of the altar sat Ambassador McCormick, Senior Special Ambassador Porter, Junior Special Ambassador Loomis, United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Rear Admiral Sigsbee and other officers of the American squadron. Across the aisle sat Premier Rouvier with other members of his cabinet, practically the entire diplomatic corps and officers of the army and navy.

After brief religious services Gen. Porter advanced alongside the casket and formally delivered the body to Mr. Loomis, as the representative of the United States government, who accepted in the name of the government and commissioned Admiral Sigsbee to transport it to the United States.

As the choir took up "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," the entire assemblage rose and joined in the patriotic hymn. Eight sailrors from the Brooklyn then stepped forward and, raising the casket on their shoulders, bore it from the church to the waiting gun carriage. This was draped with the national colors and was drawn by six black horses. The cortege was now formed and proceeded to the Esplanade Des Invalides.

Arriving at the Esplanade Des Invalides an imposing picture was presented. The French government had erected a large pavillion in which to deposit the coffin. The pavillion was richly hung with crimson velvet, with martial emblems and battle axes, entwined flags and a row of brass field pieces along the front. Nearby rose the gilded dome of the tomb of Napoleon.

The casket was deposited in the center of the pavillion while the cortege passed, rendering military honors. Later it was borne to the Invalides railroad station and placed in a funeral car where, guarded by French and American sailors, it started for Cherbourg last night.

ISTHMIAN CANAL WORK.

Chairman Shonts Says that a Great Effort Will be Made to Secure Healthful Conditions.

Washington, July 7.—Life on the isthmus of Panama is to be made healthful, comfortable and enjoyable before the real work of digging the canal is begun, according to an announcement of policy made Thursday by Chairman Shonts, of the Panama canal commission. Mr. Shonts said:

"Our first duty is to create sound underlying conditions. This is now vastly more important than the moving of dirt. The men must have suitable houses in healthy surroundings; they must have wholesome food at reasonable cost; they must have suitable transportation facilities to get to and from their work, and they must have opportunity for recreation. It will be the policy of the commission to provide these essentials as quickly as possible.

"In regard to the wages paid and the statements that so many men have left because of reduction in salaries, the fact is that wages instead of having been reduced have been increased in every branch of the service on the isthmus during the life of the present commission. It will be the fixed practice of the commission to fill the higher positions by the promotion of deserving employes."

"FLYER" WAS WRECKED.

Thirty People Injured as the Result of an Accident on the Great Northern Railroad.

St. Paul, Minn., July 7.—About 30 people were injured, one seriously, in the wreck of the Great Northern westbound "flyer" at Springbrook, 21 miles east of Williston, N. D., late Wednesday night. Seven cars were burned by a fire which broke out immediately after the wreck, presumably caused by the explosion of a gas tank under the smoking car. The mail car and the special car Joliet, containing Dr. Frank Billings, of Chicago, and a party of physicians en route to Portland, Ore., did not leave the rails and were unharmed by the flames.

Officials of the road say it was a miracle that numbers were not killed, as the train was running at a high rate of speed when it left the rails. According to their report there was no spreading of the rails, and they are unable to account for the accident. As the cars left the track they partially up-ended, but did not break in two.

Most of those injured suffered from burns, the flames spreading so rapidly that many were scorched before they could be removed from the wreckage.

Five Miners Killed.

Uniontown, Pa., July 7.—As the result of an explosion yesterday at the shaft of the Taylor Coal and Coke Co. at Searight, Pa., six miles west of here, five men were killed and four injured, one fatally. Two of the dead were negroes and the other three were foreigners.

ELEVEN MEN DROWNED

They Were Thrown Into Chippewa River, in Wisconsin, When Their Boat Capsized.

WERE CARRIED INTO THE RAPIDS

Only One of the 12 Men in the Boat Succeeded in Saving Himself—A Boat Set Out to Rescue the Men, but Arrived Too Late.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., July 8.—Eleven log drivers were drowned in Chippewa river at Little Falls dam yesterday when they lost control of the batteau in which 16 other men had safely crossed the river. The batteau swamped.

A crew of 74 men had been sent out by the Chippewa Lumber and Boom Co. under Kenneth McLeod to break a log jam below the falls.

A crew of 15 men started in a boat for the center of the stream. Louis Gokey and Andrew Cagnon were running the boat, which was overloaded, and as it touched the lower end of the jam three men jumped and landed safely on the logs.

The other 12, however, were carried swiftly away into the wild rapids where the boat capsized, throwing all into the water. They were all good swimmers, but the water was too swift and only one succeeded in saving himself. A boat which immediately set out to rescue the drowning men arrived too late and was carried through the rapids. It also capsized, but no one was drowned.

Foreman McLeod at once set 60 men to work hunting for the bodies, but as yet none has been found. Little Falls is one of the most dreaded places on the Chippewa river for drivers, yet this is the first serious accident that has ever occurred there.

TALKED TO TEACHERS.

President Roosevelt Addresses the Convention of Schoolmasters at Asbury Park.

Asbury Park, N. J., July 8.—A crowd of 30,000 persons which turned out to welcome President Roosevelt made Friday, the closing day of the National Educational association's convention, the most impressive of all the great educational meetings.

"The Duties of the Rich," was the subject matter of the speech which the president delivered to the educators.

"After a certain point has been reached," he said, "money making can never again stand on the same plane with other and nobler forms of effort. The roll of American worthiness numbers, of rich men, only those who have used their riches aright, who have shown good conduct in acquiring it, and not merely lavish generosity in disposing of it."

Although this was the last day of the convention the president found 12,000 delegates, nearly all school teachers, waiting to hear his first speech, which was made in Ocean Grove auditorium.

At the close of this address the president partly retraced his way through the crowds who had welcomed him outside, but who had been unable to secure admission to the auditorium, and at a previously chosen spot, where the overflow crowd had concentrated, he made a second speech in the open air to an even greater crowd than indoors. His second audience was estimated at 20,000.

The presidential train arrived at the depot at 2 o'clock and it took 35 minutes to make the trip from there through the welcoming people until the moment when the cheering subsided and the president began to speak from the Ocean Grove auditorium platform.

BUSINESS BULLETIN.

The Usual Midsummer Conditions of Quiet Prevail.

New York, July 8.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Customary quiet commercial conditions at midsummer were augmented by the interruption of a holiday, except that warm weather gave impetus to the distribution of seasonable wearing apparel, sporting goods and outing supplies. In wholesale and jobbing circles an unusually brisk duplicate order business testifies to the freedom from accumulated stocks on the shelves of interior dealers, while there is no abatement of confidence in the future.

Structural steel and all forms of railway equipment are the prominent features of the iron industry, but quiet conditions prevail at coke ovens and pig iron furnaces. Sensational soaring of quotations for raw materials threatens the stability of the leading textile markets, although consumption is not yet perceptibly diminished by rapidly rising price lists.

Failures this week in the United States are 160 against 206 the corresponding week last year, and in Canada 21, against 12 last year.

Mutineers Escaped Their Pursuers.

St. Petersburg, July 8.—According to the latest reports the Kniaz Potemkin has escaped her pursuers and is still at large in the Black Sea with the torpedo boat destroyer Smetilivy and the Black Sea fleet hot on her trail. There is little doubt that she is heading for Poti or Batoum.

Fourteen Miners Killed.

AVENUE OF VICTORY.

Berlin's Famous Boulevard to Be Reproduced in the City of Washington.

Berlin.—Here is a picture of Bedlin's famous marble Sieges allee (Avenue of Victory), which American cablegrams report is to serve as model for a statuary lined avenue of American heroes in Washington—to be erected through the munificence of the lately deceased Chicago millionaire lumberman, Benjamin F. Furguson. The Sieges allee, which is one of Berlin's great show sights, is a personal gift to the city from Kaiser Wilhelm, and represents his own artistic idea. It bisects the beautiful Thiergarten park at the north end, stretching for a quarter of a mile from the giant Column of Victory in Koenigs platz to the intersection of Bellevue allee and Thiergarten strasse. It is adorned on either side with marble statutes of Prussian rulers, 32 groups in all, beginning with the earliest Markgrafs and continuing up to the time of the present emperor's grandfather, Kaiser Wilhelm the Great. Behind the figure of each ruler, which is considerably more than life size in glittering white marble, is a semi-circular bench bearing at either end busts of two eminent contemporaries. Beside Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, for instance, are the busts of Moltke and Bismarck. It is said the present emperor has reserved a space in the allee for his own statue, which, he hopes, will be erected by grateful posterity.

The Sieges allee, besides constituting a magnificent selection of modern German sculpture, is a splendid lesson in history and patriotism for young Germany. Almost any afternoon troops of school children may be seen tramping up and down the allee in charge of teachers, who explain the significant things about the reign of each ruler, and about the two great men worthy of being immortalized in marble alongside of him. The statue of Frederick the Great in the Sieges allee was the original of the bronze presented by the kaiser to the city of Washington a year ago.

In spring and summer, when the beautiful foliage of the Thiergarten is in full bloom and blossom, the Sieges allee is a gorgeous sight. It is sometimes made fun of by the hypercritical Berliners as being too funeral in aspect, and as giving a cemetery look to the park, but the avenue will stand for all time as a monument to patriotism and artistic sense of the strenuous William II.

The Sieges allee represents a cost of $1,000,000, and was paid for from the private purse of the kaiser.

BRITISH MUNICIPAL GLORY.

A New $8,000,000 Building Is to House the London County Council.

London.—The London county council has sanctioned the purchase of a site on the south bank of the Thames, opposite the houses of parliament, at a cost of $3,000,000, on which to erect a county hall at an additional cost of about $5,280,000, with a river embankment costing $220,000. There will be a frontage of 800 feet on the river and if the building is architecturally successful it will form with St. Thomas' hospital and Lambeth palace, also on the south side, a magnificent group of public buildings.

The definite plans for the building are not yet completed, and the drawing is not intended as other than a sketch scheme. At present the site consists of some unsightly wharves at the southeast end of Westminster bridge, but it is proposed to house in a great county hall the county council, which controls the local government of London, with the exception of the square mile of the city which remains under the historic lord mayor at the Mansion House. All the administrative offices will be contained in the building, together with the council chamber.

Told of the President.

Representative Cushman relates that when President Roosevelt was in the state of Washington last year, he had a most enthusiastic reception. At one of the gatherings an old frontiersman confided to Mr. Cushman that Roosevelt was the greatest man he ever saw and the greatest man who ever visited the northwest. On being asked for the reason of his judgment the man replied: "Why, Roosevelt is the only man I ever saw who looks worse than his cartoons."

It is indeed unfortunate that the federal deficit on June 30, the close of the fiscal year, should have so far exceeded Secretary Shaw's estimate. It amounted to $24,300,000, or $6,300,000 more than the Secretary had believed was possible. Every cloud has a silver lining however, and it is more than probable that the President will find the growing deficit a powerful weapon in his coming fight for tariff readjustment, in which he is certain to be bit erly opposed by the stand patters.

There is no doubt but that the views of Secretary Hay contributed to the tenacity with which the President has insisted that the time has come for the Republican party to readjust the tariff schedules to suit changed conditions. Mr. Hay was an intensely loyal protectionist none more so, but be believed in customs duties which would closely equal the difference between the wages of foreign and domestic labor, and in not a penny more.

Can anyone read the list of prominent Chicagoans indicted in connection with the Goverment's prosecution of the Beef Trust and for a moment doubt the sincerity of the President's campaign against the trusts?

It is perfectly amazing how excited some people can get over little things. It is reported that some of the labor unions are "up in arms" over the President's order regarding the Chinese exclusion law. Can they not realize that all the President has done is to insist that the law be enforced precisely as its framers intended that it should be? Is there any possible reason why a man whose duty it is to exclude a Chinaman should use harsh and brutal methods instead of positive and polite ones?

Judge Hooker of New York believes that the Tammany Senators will prove powerful enough to effect his whitewashing. If there is any dirty work to be done it is the Tammany statesmen who are expected to perform it.

Chief Engineer Wallace must regret that Secretary Taft ever got off the lid. The Chief Engineer probably has an impression that it was the lid itself that struck him.

The new engineer of the Panama Canal, Stevens has promised Taft that he will not come away from Panama without orders unless he does so "in a pine box."

The revisers of the litany should add a line something like this. "From a Panama pension-list, Oh! Lord deliver us."

The Great Canadian Assurance Co.

On another page of this paper our readers will see an advertisement of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Montreal, Canada. This company is deserving of the confidence of the people because of its fair dealing to its policy holders and the liberality of its contracts. The Canadian Companies embody many things that at present our own companies do not. The exposures of the Equitable Life Insurance Company and the allegations made by Mr. Lawson develope the fact that there are some serious defects in our insurance laws. President Roosevelt in his last message to Congress urgently recommended that a national bureau of insurance should be established. At present all insurance legislation is by states, and unfortunately it is too much for the protection of the management and too little for the protection of the policy holders. On the other hand the Canadian Companies are under national supervision and it is recognized that the insurance laws of Canada are the best in the world. So strict are the laws of Canada that no regular life insurance company in that country has ever failed or has a policy holder ever lost a penny, consequently a person insuring in the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada has not only the protection of the splendid laws of Canada, but also the same protection that he would have in any home company because the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada has to comply with every law and every requirement that any home company has to. The Sun Life not only issues all the regular forms of policies that all other companies do, but it makes a specialty of what is known as the triplet policies and the life income endowment.

A Life Income Endowment is a policy that allows the assured to make an absolute protection for himself and his beneficiary as follows:

In case the assured dies during his term of 20 years the company will pay from $50 to $5,000 a year to the beneficiary for 20 years and as long thereafter as the beneficiary may live, but should the assured survive the 20 years, the income of $50 to $5,000 a year will revert to him as long as he lives and should his beneficiary survive him the amount will continue to be paid the reminder of the beneficiary's life. So under that system anyone during their producing years can secure an absolute income for themselves and those dependent upon them the remainder of their lives.

The Triplet form is a combination of regular insurance and income. For example: A person takes a $10,000 triplet policy. In case of his decease, the company immediately pays $10,000 to the beneficiary and after paying the $10,000 they will pay another $10,000 in 20 annual installmens of $500 each, and after paying the 20 installments of $500, they will pay another sum o $10,000. In other words the $10,000 triplet insurance secures to the estate $30,000 at a cost of about ⅓ of what the same amount of insurance would call for on the regular forms. Then again the Sun Life has a system by which it will issue policies from $125 to $1,000 on the different forms of Life, 20-Payment Life, and 20-Year Endowment to any who desire to take regular life insurance, but cannot see their way to pay for $1,000 and upwards. The smaller policies of $250 and $500 have the same equities and surrender values as the large policies have, the chief difference being that the results instead of being estimated are guaranteed. To any desiring up-to-date, first class insurance contracts, it would be well to investigate the contracts of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada. We will cheerfully give any information at this office.

Mr. Pyle, at present located at New Warner, Emporium, is acting as an assistant to the management of the Erie Office and will not only be pleased to give all terms and rates, but also give information to any who desire to act as agents.

Who use molasses demand the best syrup obtainable. Treacle is not molasses although there's much treacle sailing under false colors. The difference between treacle and molasses lies in the fact that treacle comes from sugar in the process of making, while molasses is obtained in the process of refining. GUARD AGAINST GERMS.

Keep Well by Strengthening the Stomach in Summer With Mi-o-na.

In time of war the most responsibility rests upon the guard. If he is lacking in vigilance, disaster can easily overtake the army.

With the individual life, the stomach may well represent the "guard" against sickness. It it is strong and vigilant, any disease germs that may be swallowed will be neutralized by the digestive juices, or else driven from the system.

Everyone with weak digestion should use Mi-o-na at this season and so strengthen the stomach that disease germs can have no effect whatever. This remarkable remedy puts the whole digestive system in so healthy, clean and sweet a state that fermentation of the food cannot exist, that any disease germs which may enter the stomach will be destroyed, and food will be so rapidly assimilated that a rapid and healthy increase in flesh will result.

Nervousness and sleeplessness come more often from a weak stomach than from any [illegible] cause; headache, backache, and rheumatic pains are directly caused by an acid condition of the stomach. Mi-o-na corrects all this, prevents the formation of acids, and nervousness, kidney trouble, or rheumatism, is quickly cured.

Ask L. Taggart to show you the guarantee under which he sells Mi-o-na. Price 50 cents. It costs nothing unless it cures.

WE KNOW LITTLE WHAT WE ARE

We know so little what we are,
What new unbidden self may rise,
To falsify the former life
And strike the heart with wild surprise.

We know so little what we are,
So, doubt the self we yet may be,
That linked years assume a shape
Of dread and mutability.

Desire with its myriad mood
And fate that moldeth us anew,
Shall leave us but the faded wraith
Of that first simple self we knew.

But Honor be our shield—and Truth
Defend our steps where'er we range!
Whatever alter, these shall save
From irremediable change.

A ROSE OF NORMANDY

By WILLIAM R. A. WILSON

"Perchance some such chair contains my Lily of Poitou," muttered Tonti to himself; and as he did so, he smiled at the thought of his ever being able to give up woman in the abstract for a woman, however beautiful.

While engaged thus, he did not hear the warning sound of horse's hoofs upon the paving-stones close behind him. It was only when this sound was accompanied by a harsh human voice that he turned quickly and leaped aside, as he saw a horseman riding at full speed almost upon him. He did not escape entirely, for the huge stirrup of the rider caught him a blow in the side that nearly overthrew him, while at the same time a shower of mingled mud and water from the horse's hoofs splashed over his new boots.

He sprang forward with an angry cry, his hand on his sword, in pursuit of the man whose carelessness had caused the accident. The blow in the side did not ruffle him half as much as the ruin of the boots he had paid 200 livres for within the hour. The man turned in his saddle, and shook his fist at him, but did not slacken his speed. Wrapped as he was in a huge cloak, with his hat pulled down over his eyes, Tonti could not get a glimpse of his face. His cry, however, soon changed from one of anger to that of alarm and warning, for the man, still half turned in his saddle, and regarding Tonti with a menacing air, did not see that his horse was about to collide with the chair and its bearers. He turned as he heard their warning shouts, but not in time to change his horse's course, who the next moment plunged into the first bearer, knocking him down, and dashed against the side of the chair with sufficient force to send it toppling over with a crash, despite the efforts of the bearer in the rear to prevent its overthrow.

The horse staggered and finally stumbled, sending his rider sprawling on the pavement. He was not hurt, for he jumped up, and after his horse had risen, climbed into the saddle and was about to go on, unmindful of the damage he had already wrought. Tonti, hearing a feminine scream from the interior of the chair as it went over, started to assist in righting it, but before he reached the spot the two bearers had already succeeded in doing so; then too, the sight of the doer of all this mischief about to make his escape changed his purpose, so not stopping at the place of the accident, he rushed on toward the horse and rider. He reached them just in time to seize the horse's rein, and hinder his further progress.

"Diamine! You insolent fellow, what mean you by running into me and overturning yonder lady's chair?" he cried, breathless from his exertions.

"Let go my rein, you flea-bitten cur," was the insulting reply. "How dare you? I ride upon the king's business;" and, raising his whip, he made a move as though to strike Tonti across the face. Tonti saw the movement and quick as thought had his sword-point against the man's breast.

"Make but one motion with that whip or one effort to escape and I shall spit you like I would any other carrion. King's business or no, you must first return and make amends to the occupant of yon chair, and then disclose your name and face to me, so that if you are not the street-scum your actions indicate you to be, I can have the pleasure of crossing swords with you. Come, about face;" and so speaking, Tonti turned the horse's head and led both horse and rider back to the chair. Still keeping his sword drawn, he advanced to the window, whose curtain was down, and, bowing, said in a respectful voice:

"It grieves me truly, madame, that this fright should have occurred to you, and I hope that you are not injured by the overthrow. Believe me, the cause of it shall be justly punished for his insolence. As the first step in that punishment I have brought him to you to force him, at the point of my sword, if necessary, to make due reparation to you and to uncloak his face so that I may know whether he is worthy for a soldier to meet upon the field of honor."

While speaking he involuntarily lowered his sword a trifle. The rider saw his opportunity, and suddenly digging the spurs into his horse, he jerked the rein from Tonti's hand, and as he passed struck him a stinging blow upon the cheek with his whip, saying in a voice filled with hatred: "Thus do I brand my dogs," and was gone at full gallop down the street.

At the first sound of the man's voice, the occupant of the chair gave another little feminine shriek, and as Tonti looked after the fleeing enemy, his cheek red and tingling from the lash, choking with anger at the insult, he was vaguely conscious that a corner of the curtain was raised and a pair of eyes were regarding him furtively. He must have been mistaken, for when he turned again the curtain was motionless.

"The wretch has fled. I, however, marked well his horse and shall search the city until I find it, and then its owner. I shall fight him with a greater joy now that I have his insult to you to avenge as well as mine own," he said gallantly, sheathing his sword and picking up his hat.

"I thank you, sir, for your assistance, but do not, I beg of you, fight with that man; he is an expert swordsman and a person without honor, who would take any advantage of you, so as he could kill you," came in half-abashed and faltering earnest tones from the interior of the chair.

The voice was that of a woman, young, refined, and presumably beautiful; at least a rare beauty should properly accompany a voice as rich in its modulations and as clear as it was.

Some such thought flashed through Tonti's mind, as he bowed his head so as to bring it near the window, and spoke in a voice low enough to escape the ears of the bearers, who stood ready to proceed with the chair. "May I not be rewarded by a sight of the fair one I found in distress, and, like a true knight, have endeavored to relieve?"

There was no reply for a moment, then the curtains suddenly parted and he saw before him the smiling face of a young girl, whose beauty seized and thrilled him. Only a glimpse, and the curtains were again closed and the word of command given to the bearers. Tonti was in ecstasy and despair, when a small white ungloved hand appeared between the curtains. He seized it in one of his, and, bending low, kissed it. Another instant he stood hat in hand, watching the chair disappear around a neighboring corner, while in his grasp he held a dainty kerchief, in one corner of which was embroidered the letter "R."

He pressed it to his lips, and, noting the letter, exclaimed: "Mine is no lily; 'R' stands for 'Rose,' and, since the fairest are found in Normandy, I shall call her my 'Rose of Normandy' for want of a better name." And all through that night a certain lodger in the Place de la Greve dreamed of many conflicts and battles, all of which ended in his being victorious and standing on a high spot somewhere, drinking the blood of his enemies to the health of his "Rose of Normandy."

CHAPTER VI.

A DARK CHAPTER, DEALING WITH A DARK NIGHT, DARK MEN, AND DARK ERRANDS.

The rain that had threatened during the day broke over the city at night, in an almost unparalleled tempest. The lightning played about the spires of Notre Dame and other churches, so that many beads were told and prayers offered for the safety of the city, in hope of warding off the vengeance of offended Deity. But there were many abroad that night on unholy errands who feared rather the devil and his crew of demons than the thunder-bolts of Heaven. It was the age of mystery and the Black Art, and many there were who, not satisfied with offerings made within the sacred edifices, sought how they might likewise placate and win the power and influence of His Satanic Majesty, Monsieur Diable.

Whilst the storm was at its height, about 11 by the clock, the figure of a man carefully cloaked against the rain and recognition might have been observed making his way along a street in that famous (or rather infamous) part of Paris known as the Quartier Bonne-Nouvelle. He fought his way inch by inch against the force of the wind and rain. At times when he reached the partial shelter of a wall or projecting corner, he halted a moment to gain his breath or rearrange the cloak that the wind tried to deprive him of. He finally turned into a small street, the Rue Beauregard, that was almost deserted. He came to a portion that seemed to traverse a vast vacant space, void of all habitations save one. This one exception was a large mansion set back some distance from the street, its yard filled with trees and surrounded on all sides by a high stone wall.

A feeble light secured from the force of the wind overlooked a narrow opening in the wall, which was filled by a barred gateway. The man stopped beneath the light, which was ingeniously arranged so as to throw a shadow on whoever stood immediately below it. He hesitated a moment, and then pulled at a knob in the wall, which evidently communicated with a mysterious bell, for in a moment another light appeared in the hands of an ugly, cross-looking dwarf, who alternately scowled and leered at the visitor as he let him in.

The flashes of lightning rendered the services of the dwarf's torch superfluous, so he made his way rapidly toward the house without waiting for his guide, knocked, and was immediately admitted. The brightness of the interior contrasted so strongly with the darkness of the night outside that the man was dazed for a moment. He was led into a small waiting-room and left to himself, amid a profusion of gorgeous furnishings that seemed strange in this deserted part of the city.

But there was reason for his finding his surroundings strange and terrible, for he was within the walls of the most infamous home of crime and villany in Paris. It was none other than the house of La Voisin, the celebrated sorceress, poisoner, infanticide; the Locusta of her day; the Toffana of France. Hither came the husband seeking to be rid of an aging wife by spell or poison, in order to espouse a more youthful beauty; the wife, longing for freedom from a rich but distasteful husband, or finding here a rendezvous with her lover. All classes of the aristocracy came as petitioners at the shrine of this arch-priestess of hell. Officers of the army desiring the death of those outranking them; magistrates, ministers of state—all met on one common level of hideous crime.

Here, too, came the first women of the court in their sedan-chairs; duchesses, ladies-in-waiting, countesses, princesses, to gain their hearts' desire, with all the faith and earnestness worthy of a better cause. Now one craved a love philter to overcome a lover's coldness or neglect; another some secret essence to preserve her youthfulness against the ravages wrought by the life of fashionable debauchery in which all lived.

In this den of infamy was celebrated the impious Black Mass, wherein the liturgical ceremonies of the Christian church were travestied and degraded by devilish ingenuity; in which children one and two years old were sacrificed to Satan as at a heathen festival. There, too, came Madame de Montespan, and in an elaborate service, with impious priest and desecrated altar, rendered full homage to the Prince of Darkness, craving his aid to win for her the love of the king, the confusion of her enemies, and the gratification of her desires.

Within a small waiting-room, the visitor awaited his turn to interview the mistress of the establishment. He removed his cloak and hat, and stood revealed to an observer as a young man of 25, tall, with dark hair and black over-arching eyebrows which seemed to scowl continually. His face was smooth, save a few hairs on the under lip, which he pulled at nervously as he stood or walked up and down the floor of the apartment. His eyes were deep-set, and gleamed with the fight of the unquenched fires of dark desire within their depths. His cheek-bones rather accentuated the deep-seatedness of his eyes; a sensuous mouth betrayed the voluptuary, while a receding chin gave a mixed impression of instability and waywardness. A finely curved aquiline nose showed good birth, and hands, white and well cared for, demonstrated a life of idleness and pleasure. A certain air of ease and lack of self-consciousness in all his movements indicated association and even familiarity with those in authority. On the whole, he seemed a fair sample of the well-bred courtier of his day.

At length, just as a distant clock chimed 12, a door opened and another dwarf appeared, and approaching him asked for his name.

"Le Comte de Miron," was the reply made in a low voice.

Again the dwarf disappeared, but returned shortly, and motioning to the young man, led the way into the adjoining room.

Here were found the same rich hangings and priceless tapestries. High carved chairs, their seats banked up with varicolored silken pillows, were arranged against the wall on three sides of the room. A dim light came through the center of the ceiling from an unknown source, and was suffused throughout the apartment by means of glass prisms, forming a softened yet serviceable glow. In the middle of the floor stood a small fountain of translucent marble, whose tiny jets of perfumed water rendered the air as agreeable to the nostrils as the other furnishings attracted the eye. The musical cadence of a lute, played by a hand invisible, always soft and low, but sometimes dying away to the finest attenuation of sound, greeted the ear of the newcomer. Across the further end of the room were stretched silken curtains. From behind these hangings issued a soft voice commanding the young man to advance. He did so, and knelt directly in front of the mysterious drapery. From his close proximity he discovered that the silk was almost transparent, so that the form of a woman could be faintly discerned, yet not with sufficient clearness to enable one to recognize her face.

"What seek you of the Powers of Darkness?" demanded the voice.

"I seek first, most powerful Priestess, a charm to win the hand of one, Renee d'Outrelaise, friend and companion of Mademoiselle, whose lovely person I desire. Next, the means for a sure and speedy death of a relative whose heir I am. And lastly, I crave thy aid to nerve my arm and protect my body in a duel I shall shortly fight with a foreign soldier."

"Truly, thy wants are many and great. What offering have you to make before the devil's shrine?"

"Ten thousand livres;" and, as he spoke, he drew from his bosom a bag of clinking gold and stretched it forth. A hand protruded itself through the curtains and seized it. There was silence for a moment or two, as the priestess examined the contents. All seemed satisfactory, for in a moment the hand reappeared bearing a tiny charm of silk an inch square attached to a fine gold chain.

"Take this," was the command. "Gain but a single hair from the head of her whose hand you seek to win, inclose it in this silken bag, and wear it. Within a year the girl is yours."

The Comte de Miron seized the chain eagerly and placed it about his neck. Again the hand appeared from behind the curtain. This time it held a small phial containing a rose-red fluid.

"Drop one drop daily into your relative's wine. He will soon begin to droop and weaken, and before this precious liquid is used up he will die, and no leech can save him nor distinguish his malady."

The young man took the poison. A moment later the hand was again before him, this time holding two pieces of thin, strange-looking metal about the shape of a pistole.

"Sew these at midnight before the duel, one on your right sleeve to give your sword-arm strength and cunning, the other over against your heart to protect your body."

So saying, the voice ceased and the bits of metal fell into his outstretched palm. A slight noise at his elbow caused the comte to start and turn in that direction, when he beheld the same dwarf that had ushered him into the room standing with his cloak and hat ready. He quickly donned these, and after being led toward the wall by his deformed guide, a secret door sprang open and an instant later he found himself standing in the Rue de Beauregard, with the rain still falling in torrents about him.

Through the same storm that broke about the head of the young Comte de Miron, as he went about his nefarious errand, another cloaked figure of a man might have been seen hurrying to a midnight appointment in another portion of the city. This person, too, feared neither God nor devil. As he passed Notre Dame, he stopped a moment in the shadows, and looked up through the murk at the massive structure in admiration of the inherent strength and power that enabled it, inanimate though it was, to fling defiance to the lowering thunder clouds, and stand unshaken before the buffetings of wind and rain.

Favorite Card Game of Japanese.

A favorite card game of the Japanese is played as follows: One hundred well-known proverbs are selected, each divided into two parts, and each part printed on a separate card. The host of the evening has the hundred first halves, which he reads aloud, one by one; the hundred second halves are dealt to the other players, who place their hands face upward on the "tatami," or thick mat of rice straw, on which they sit. As the first half of the proverb is read, the holder of the second half throws it out, or if he sees it unnoticed among his neighbor's cards, seizes it and gives him one of his own. The player who is first "out" wins. It is a very simple game, but it affords great entertainment to the players; for the quicksight and keen-witted are constantly seizing the cards of their duller and slower neighbors, and this leads to much laughter and many good-natured sarcasms.—Westminister Gazette.

Dying Thoughts of a Cowboy.

One day a party of townspeople were camping in the hills beside a raging river till it should be safe to cross, says the Boston Transcript. They saw a rough man struggling amidstream with a very small chance of ever reaching shore. It was an exhausting time, even for those who helplessly looked on. When the man at last saved himself and had been ministered unto, the psychologist of the party asked: "What were you thinking of while you were in such danger?"

"I thought," said the honest cowboy, "that I had $100 to my credit and did not want to die with all that money unspent."

Whereupon he forsook his job, gathered his little fortune, made for town and blew it all in ere 36 hours were past.

Babu's "Secret Passion."

"It is with faltering penmanship that I write to have communication with you about the prospective condition of your damsel offspring. For some remote time past a secret passion has been firing in my bosom internally with loving for your—daughter."

So begins the letter of a love-stricken Babu, quoted by the Penang Gazette. The writer continues:

"My educational capabilities have abandoned me and here I now cling to those lovely long tresses of your much-coveted daughter like a mariner shipwrecked on the rock of love. As to my scholastic calibre, I was recently rejected from the Rangoon College, and I am now masticating."—London Mail.

Not Enough for Two.

The recent severance of a long existing friendship between two titled English women of no little social prominence, but with whose names Mrs. Grundy had been busy, is explained in this wise by Mr. George Grossmith. After they had both defied public opinion for some time, one said to the other;

"Now, my dear, we must part forever, for you have no character left, and I have not enough for two."—Denver Republican.

THE LOST CHORD FOUND.

Cheerfully Supplied by Long-Suffering Victims of a Neighborhood Nuisance.

He was a young man in lodgings and he was learning to play the cornet. There was no disputing the earnestness and perseverance of this embryo cornetist, relates London Tit-Bits.

Every evening during the late heat wave he threw his window open and blew away at the "Lost Chord." It was ever the "Lost Chord."

In the commercial-room of the hotel opposite the "knights of the road" sat, scribbling off their orders and hurling anathemas at the head of the young man player.

Finally they held a council of war and determined on his destruction.

Cutting off a window cord, they rang for the boots and ordered him to take it across to the musician, with the following note:

"Dear Sir: Make no more trouble over your 'Lost C(h)ord.' We send you a substitute which we hope you will find long enough.

"We will arrange with the coroner and guarantee a decent burial."

The doleful notes of the "Lost Chord" were not heard in that street afterwards.

Heartless Husband.

Mrs. Bryde—Oh, John, this is terrible. The cat had a fit in the kitchen and ruined the pie I had ready for dinner!

Mr. Bryde—Haven't you got the sequence of events turned around?

"Haven't I—? Oh! you cruel wretch!"—Cleveland Leader.

Do You Use Your Own Judgment?

Lion Coffee is a package coffee that reaches the homes of the people just as it left the factory where it is roasted and packed.

The beans are picked and carefully selected at the plantation, then shipped direct to our factories to be prepared for home use.

The most scrupulous care is taken with every process, and the utmost cleanliness enforced in every operation. Men and machinery employed in making Lion Coffee ready for the market are chosen on account of their excellence and fitness for the work.

Some of the results of this scrupulous treatment of Lion Coffee are a delicious flavor, perfect purity, and a uniform strength and quality.

All loose (or bulk) coffee is open to doubt—to put it mildly. The buyer does not know, the seller does not know, where the bean came from, or how it was roasted, or where and when; how many hands handled it, what kind of hands they were, what contamination it received from dust, insects, dirt, etc.

Lion Coffee is pure, fresh and clean—that much is certain. Loose coffee—there isn't anything at all certain about it except that wise housewives will not buy it!

All grocers know the above to be true. There may be a very few left who will try to persuade you another way.

If they do, just ask them how they account for the increasing popularity of Lion Coffee in millions of homes for the past quarter of a century!

None are too wise to be mistaken, but few are so wisely just as to acknowledge and correct their mistakes, and especially the mistakes of prejudice.—Barrow.

When buying loose coffee or anything your grocer happens to have in his bin, how do you know what you are getting? Some queer stories about coffee that is sold in bulk, could be told, if the people who handle it (grocers), cared to speak out.

Profits of the Packers.

There has been a great deal of disappointment because the Garfield report shows that the profits of the packing industry only amount to about two per cent. of the volume of business transacted. There is no doubt, however, that the report is correct.

The census reports compiled by the government in 1900, before the agitation regarding the "beef trust" began, throw considerable light on this question. It appears from the census that the packing industry is conducted on a smaller margin of gross profit than any other industry in America. The gross margin of profit of 871 flour and grist mills in Illinois, in the census year, was nearly seven per cent. on the volume of business. The gross margin of fifty-one wholesale slaughtering and meat packing establishments in Illinois was only about one-third as large, or a little more than two per cent. on the volume of business.

The millers have not been accused of being in a "trust," and combinations would seem impossible in a business where there are several thousand mills in the United States competing actively for the flour trade, but it appears that the gross profits of the millers are larger than the gross profits of the packers. It may turn out that the agitation regarding the packing industry will show the same result as the devil found in shearing the pig: "All squeal and no wool."

WOMEN'S WORK.

Mrs. Mary S. Cobb, of Northampton, Mass., has presented Smith college with her magnificent estate in the suburbs of her city.

Miss Owen, of Warwich, England, who is 92 years old, has been teaching Sunday-school for 82 years.

Helen Gould will pay for the education of Leroy Irvine Dixon, the nine-year-old Denver boy who saved the Rio Grande train from running into a rock slide last October.

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Wheaton, affectionately styled the "mother of Wheaton female seminary," has just died at Norton, Mass., at the age of 96. Nearly all of her large estate will become the property of the seminary. It is said to be valued at several hundred thousand dollars.

Miss Myrtle B. Parke, who has been called to the pastorate of the Christian church at Ramsey, Ill., is noted as an evangelist and is a student of Eureka college, where she fitted herself for the ministry. She formerly occupied the pulpit to which again she has been called, but resigned in order to enter college. Miss Parke's home is at Staunton, Ill. She is but 18 years of age and is thought by her instructors and church associates to have before her a successful future.

Miss Caroline Hazard, who has completed her fifth year as president of Wellesley college, Massachusetts, has demonstrated the fact that a college president need not necessarily be a college graduate. Although she did not attend a women's college, she pursued with a private tutor a course of study equal to that at Brown university, Providence, R. I. Miss Hazard is a woman of remarkably broad culture and has shown during her leadership a comprehensive grasp of the needs of her college and an intelligent sympathy with the aims and ideas of her coworkers.

THE MONTHLY TRIAL

HEADACHE, DIZZINESS, BEARING-DOWN PAINS.

A Woman Tells How She Has Become Well and Strong after Years of Misery Due to Irregular Functions.

The fact that one woman is bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked, strong and cheerful, while another is pale, weak and depressed, is due more often than otherwise to the regularity in the one case and the irregularity in the other of the functions that are peculiar to the sex. When these are disturbed everything goes wrong; pain and discomfort are felt all over the body; the sensations are often terrifying.

"For four years," said Mrs. Davis recently, "I suffered indescribable misery from sick headache every month, accompanied by fainting spells, shortness of breath and severe pain in my left side. There were also bearing-down pains, at times so acute that I could not stand up, and my head was full of ringing sounds. It seemed as if everything was going to hit me in the eyes. I was compelled to lie down with closed eyes for hours to get a little relief. When I attempted to arise everything would whirl around and it would grow so dark that I could scarcely see any object."

"Couldn't your doctor help you?"

"Five doctors in all treated me, but I got no lasting benefit. Besides I used a lot of advertised remedies. The only medicine, however, that had the desired effect was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they are truly a godsend to women. I did not have much faith in them when I began to take them. I found myself, however, so much better after using two boxes that I began to believe in them. They checked right away the decline into which I was going. My troubles kept lessening and finally disappeared altogether."

"How long did it take for a cure?"

"After I had used several boxes my health was all right. I had taken on flesh and was strong and hearty. I feel today in spirits more like a girl of sixteen than a woman of my years."

Mrs. C. H. Davis' address is Carmel, Maine, R. F. D., No. 2. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are confidently offered to women for the cure of anæmia, chlorosis, painful and irregular periods, and all forms of weakness. They are sold by every druggist.

FRUIT AT WHOLESALE.

This Custom Is Steadily Growing in Big Cities—Keep It in Cold Storage.

A practice which is steadily growing in favor among town folk, not alone in New York but in other American cities as well, is that of buying their fruit at wholesale and keeping it in cold storage until needed for consumption. The cost of such storage is now inconsiderable; in most progressive towns space to accommodate a package of about the dimensions of an ordinary flour barrel may be rented for 25 cents a month, or 50 cents for a season of three or four months. Those persons who have once tried the practice are enthusiastic over its advantages, maintaining not only that it is much cheaper than to buy fruit in small quantities from day to day in the retail market, but also that it enables them to get the best fruit that comes to market and to have only the best all the time.

There is a valuable suggestion here for the farmer and fruit grower, says the Country Gentleman. Apples, grapes, pears, quinces, plums, apricots—even peaches and melons, as well as bananas, oranges and grapefruit—can be kept sound and good for a surprising length of time in cold storage. As people come to realize this more generally, the opening for such a trade between townsfolk and country growers must increase immensely. There is such an opening now, and the fruitmen whose warms are near enough to the cities to permit them to carry their fruit to the consumer have such an opportunity as never was known before to market all their produce of a kind at one time—the best time for them—and at good prices.

Large growers living at too great a distance from any city to carry their fruit to market themselves would find it both profitable and advantageous to employ an agent in the city to handle this trade for them, soliciting orders from consumers for fruits in bulk at wholesale prices and making the deliveries in season. It is easy enough to find plenty of buyers for good fruits; the fruit-eating habit has increased enormously in the last decade or two—indeed there has been a remarkably widespread awakening to a realization of the value of fruit as a staple article of diet. The one thing needful is to bring the grower and the consumer together. A highly profitable trade is bound to follow.

Having started with fruit, there is no reason why such direct business relations between farmer and city householder should not broaden to include eggs, butter, vegetables and farm produce in general. The consumer would much prefer to deal directly with the producer, whenever possible, rather than with some middleman, be he commission merchant, wholesaler or retailer—not alone because doing so would be in the long run appreciably cheaper, but still more because it would enable him to get the best of the farmer's goods and get them more quickly and in fresher, better shape. The grower who exerts himself to dispose of his product in this way will soon find that he has secured a good, profitable and sure market for all the produce he can supply.

REASON WHY DOG SNORED

Canine's Nose Was So Short That There Could Be No Draught, Explains Little Walter.

Walter Bacon, who has no children of his own, tells of the bright remark of a six-year-old boy who is the pride of a friend's family. The friend is a civil and mechanical engineer, and naturally has talked shop around his home until the boy is somewhat familiar with technical terms.

Recently the family took charge of a pug dog belonging to a neighbor, who had gone to the country. The pug was old and fat, and had difficulty in breathing, which caused it to snore when it went to sleep.

The first night the family was kept awake by the dog's snoring, and the next night, things were worse. The engineer and his wife were in a quandary. They had promised the neighbor to take care of the dog, but they felt it was necessary they should sleep. They were discussing the matter at breakfast, while the canine cause of the disturbance lay contentedly on the rug with its abrupt nose between its paws.

Finally the six-year-old boy broke into the conversation.

"I know why that dog snores," he said.

"Well, why?" inquired the father.

"Its nose is so short there is no draught."—Louisville Herald.

Proved Beyond a Doubt.

Middlesex, N. Y., July 3.—(Special)—That Rheumatism can be cured has been proved beyond a doubt by Mrs. Betsey A. Clawson, well known here. That Mrs. Clawson had Rheumatism and had it bad, all her acquaintances know. They also know she is now cured. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it. Mrs. Clawson tells the story of her cure as follows:

"I was an invalid for most five years caused by Inflammatory Rheumatism, helpless two-thirds of the time. The first year I could not do as much as a baby could do; then I rallied a little bit and then a relapse. Then a year ago the gout set in my hands and feet. I suffered untold agony and in August, 1903, when my husband died, I could not ride to the grave.

"I only took two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and in two weeks I could wait on myself and saw my own wood. I dug my own potatoes and gathered my own garden last fall. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills put the Kidneys in shape to take all the uric acid out of the blood.

NO TONGUE CAN TELL

How I Suffered with Itching and Bleeding Eczema—Until Cured by Cuticura.

"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with a terribly painful, itching, and bleeding eczema, my body and face being covered with sores. Never in my life did I experience such awful suffering, and I longed for death, which I felt was near. I had tried doctors and medicines without success, but my mother insisted that I try Cuticura. I felt better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap and one application of Cuticura Ointment, and was soon entirely well. Any person having doubt about this wonderful cure may write to me. THE TURN OF LIFE

A Time When Women Are Susceptible to Many Dread Diseases—Intelligent Women Prepare for It. Two Relate their Experience.

The "change of life" is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and the anxiety felt by women as it draws near is not without reason.

Every woman who neglects the care of her health at this time invites disease and pain.

When her system is in a deranged condition, or she is predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of any organ, the tendency is at this period likely to become active—and with a host of nervous irritations, make life a burden. At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to form and begin their destructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

These symptoms are all just so many calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance and the cry should be heeded in time.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life. It invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried thousands of women safely through this crisis.

For special advice regarding this important period women are invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and it will be furnished absolutely free of charge.

Read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound did for Mrs. Hyland and Mrs. Hinkle:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I had been suffering with falling of the womb for years and was passing through the Change of Life. My womb was badly swollen; my stomach was sore; I had dizzy spells, sick headaches, and was very nervous.

"I wrote you for advice and commenced treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as you directed, and I am happy to say that all those distressing symptoms left me and I have passed safely through the Change of Life, a well woman. I am recommending your medicine to all my friends."—Mrs. Annie E. G. Hyland, Chestertown, Md.

Another Woman's Case.

"During change of life words cannot express what I suffered. My physician said I had a cancerous condition of the womb. One day I read some of the testimonials of women who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to try it and to write you for advice. Your medicine made me a well woman, and all my bad symptoms soon disappeared.

"I advise every woman at this period of life to take your medicine and write you for advice."—Mrs. Lizzie Hinkle, Salem, Ind.

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Hyland and Mrs. Hinkle it will do for any woman at this time of life.

It has conquered pain, restored health, and prolonged life in cases that utterly baffled physicians.

CURE FOR HAY FEVER.

L. Taggart Says Hyomei Will Give Relief—Sold Under Guarantee.

The season for hay fever is almost at hand, and many people feel that they will be obliged to go away in order to avid the sneezing, watery eyes, and other annoying symptons of this disagreeable summer disease.

L. Taggart wishes us to announce that when Hyomei is used as a preventive, or a cure, there will be no hay fever. He advises daily treatment with Hyomei for two or three weeks before the usual time for the annual appearance of hay fever. If this is done, the attack will be prevented. However, if the preventive treatment is no started soon enough, and the disease makes its appearance, use Hyomei six or seven times daily, and relief will be given at once.

There is no stomach dosing when Hyomei is used. Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, its medicated air reaches the minutest air cells, killing all germs and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1, extra bottles 50 cents. It is the only treatment for hay fever sold by L. Taggart under a guarantee to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.
